

This is the VNCI

For nearly one hundred years, the VNCI has provided the foundation for the chemical industry in the Netherlands.

The VNCI is a valuable partner in Dutch politics

Marjan van Loon, Chief Executive of Shell Netherlands

Our mission:

- > IMPROVE
the competitive strength of the chemical industry
- > STRENGTHEN
the license to operate
- > CLARIFY
the social value of the sector

Promoting the interests of small and medium-sized companies is explicitly on the VNCI agenda

Frank Groenen, General Manager of Sachem Europe

Powerful voice

The VNCI knows the sector inside-out and acts as a spokesperson for the chemical industry in the Netherlands. We promote and convey the interests of our members to ministries, politicians and other stakeholders. The VNCI gives the chemical industry a powerful voice in the Dutch employer's association VNO-NCW and the European sector organisation Cefic.

Virtually every chemical company in the Netherlands – whether big or small – is a member of the VNCI.

That gives the association considerable clout!

What we do for you

1 Promote your interests:

We are the designated point of contact for the chemical industry for ministers, members of parliament, government officials and other stakeholders.

The VNCI solved our problem

Emre Kaya, General Manager of Organik Kimya Netherlands

2 Expand your network:

The VNCI puts you into contact with other chemical companies, government agencies, politicians, scientists and other relevant stakeholders.

3 Our advisers, your source of knowledge:

The experienced experts of the VNCI are fully up-to-date on relevant developments that can affect your company. During meetings, we inform you about the latest developments and provide you with tools for dealing with new legislation and regulations.

4 Keep you fully up to date:

Our website, monthly Chemie Magazine, newsletter and various working and policy groups keep you up to speed on relevant developments for your company.

5 Put the chemical industry on the map:

The VNCI highlights the importance of the chemical industry in the media, at conferences and in communications with stakeholders.

6 Save you money:

Defending common interests and offering free meetings and discounts on numerous products and services through the VNCI Member Advantage Program saves your company a considerable amount of money.

The VNCI gives me access to the right network

Cor Kamminga, Director of BioBTX
